A British View of the American Tariff.

Sheffield Daily Telegraph.

"The promoters of the McKinley tariff meant it to push forward the policy of America for the Americans. One method of realizing it was to keep all work within their own dominions. The country was to be made self-sufficient; what could be produced at home was not to be bought abroad. That was the key-note of the McKinley scheme, and it is working out the idea of its designers with the precision and effectiveness of a machine."

REPUBLICAN victory in the coming election would retard for a long time the progress of the sound commercial doctrine that underlies the commercial greatness of Great Britain and alone maintain British ascendancy.—London Evening News.

IN 1890 it was a conflict of predictions now our adversaries must face trade statistics and prices current.—President Harrison, June 21, 1892.

READERS of the Intelligencer going out of town for the Summer can have the Intelligencer mailed to them for sixty-five cents per month, postage free.

More Bold Journalism.

Yesterday the INTELLIGENCER showed how the Register had made a forced levy on the editorial columns of the Buffalo Courier to supply itself with some very indignant views on the "force" bill. There was not the change of a line, a word or a point of punctuation in the article as it appeared originally in the Courier and as it appeared three days later as an original editorial article in the esteemed but erring Register.

The New York Sun has caught Mr. Pulitzer's World at the scurry trick of manufacturing cablegrams in its office and resorting to devices the most desperate to cover up its tortuous tracks. The proof is so positive that if hanging were the penalty the World would have to hang. July 11 it published as a special cablegram from Berlin the day before a remarkable interview between its correspondent and Bismarck. Under date of Milan, August 4, was a long interview with Prof. Schiaparelli, who was made to contribute to the interesting Mars literature of the day.

The Sun denounced these interviews as bogus, charging that they were written in the World office. The Sun suggested that the matter be submitted to Mr. Nicholson, editor of the Tribune, and he said that "the matter in question came by cable, or had any atom of the foundation ascribed to it in the World," the Sun would contribute $1,000 to the Tribune's fund. By this time the World was very desperate, and on August 8, nearly a month after the publication of the bogus Bismarck interviewed, it actually had that article cabled over to London and the same day cabled back, so that it might have the copy to show on the cable company's blanks.

The Sun went to the bottom of the disgraceful business and shows facsimiles of the frantic instructions to the World's London correspondent. It also sent its own correspondents to Berlin and to Milan to knock the interviews in the head from that end. The Sun further shows, by an affidavit from the writer, that another alleged cable special to the World, this time from London, was written in the city of New York.

The World can no more escape from its dilemma than the Register can explain how it happens to think the same thought as other newspapers, and in the same words with the same punctuation and the same headings. Anything that may appear in such a publication is of course open to question. How can the public be expected to have confidence in a notorious "fake" foundry?

PITTSBURG demands that the Davis Island dam be cleared of the stagnant and foul water gathered there, so foul as to invite cholera and other dread diseases. Pittsburgh is right. And when the wickets shall be lifted and the water set to flowing it will come this way and Wheeling will drink some of it. This is why we say that water from the big Ohio sewer is not fit to drink unless it has been boiled.

A West Virginian Abroad.

Non. John Bassel, who recently returned from Europe, a few days since gave the News a practical demonstration of the workings of the tariff that certainly shows that the consumer pays it. He showed us a pair of kid gloves, purchased by him in London for $1. They are the finest kid gloves made. He priced the same glove in New York and found that the lowest price for them was $2.25 to $2.50. A pair of silk and wool socks purchased by him for 48 cents in London, he found would cost him in Philadelphia, from $1.25 to $1.50. A pair of tailor-made pants for which he paid $5 in Philadelphia he found would cost him $4 in London. A fine silk umbrella for which he paid $5 in Brussels, he found would cost him $6 in this country. He made these purchases for the sake of comparison and to find out who pays the tariff. When he landed in New York he had to pay a tariff on these goods that brought them up to about the same price he would have had to pay in this country for the same articles.—Cincinnati News.

Barring his Democratic politics Mr. Bassel is an excellent man, which makes the INTELLIGENCER, as his friend, regret that so short a stay in Europe has got him in the notion of wearing only imported commodities. If he will be satisfied with American products of high quality neither he nor anybody else will have to pay any duty on them.

We cannot think that Mr. Bassel "made these purchases to find out who pays the duty on them." He knew that he would have to do that for the privilege of bringing them into this country. The interest of the foreign manufacturer in those commodities did not follow them into Mr. Bassel's possession. He had sold them in his own home market, and that was the end of the transaction for him. If he had been exporting them for sale in this country he would have paid the duty, for there is nothing in the list that we do not make and make well in this country.

For example, the INTELLIGENCER has been comfortable and happy all summer in a dozen pairs of black socks that cost three dollars in Wheeling; twenty-five cents a pair, fast color, but there is no silk in them. We have not had opportunity to compare the three-dollar Belgian umbrella with a certain American umbrella that cost fifty cents less, but an umbrella that stays in a family and continues to look reputable and to do good service for three years is good enough for the average man.

If manufactured commodities are so much cheaper abroad than they are here it is because the labor that is in them costs less; which is not so well for the labor or for the country. We could produce at less cost, by cutting down the labor, but there are a good many people in this country who object to that way of going about it. There is still another pertinent thought. Mr. Bassel had good protected American dollars to buy his foreign silk socks; for which he should be grateful. If Harrison county were set down in England it may be that Mr. Bassel would be content with cotton socks when it becomes necessary to replenish his wardrobe.

ENTERED Register: Will it trouble you most to mark your alleged editorial articles "original" or "stolen," as the case may be? This would simplify things amazingly and would save a deal of trouble not necessary to dwell on.

Giving Cholera a Chance.

Cholera is spreading in England because immigrants from infected sections have been allowed to slip through quarantine. The Canard steamer Syria has just been passed through the New York quarantine after an inspection occupying the remarkable space of thirty-eight minutes, notwithstanding she had on board a thousand passengers, half of them in the steerage.

It is very well to take vigorous measures to fight the cholera after it gets a foothold, much better to fight it off and not let it come in. It may be that there was no cholera on the Syria. However this may be, neither New York nor the country will owe its escape to anything the New York health officers did to discharge their duty in the wholesome fear of the dread invader.

Eternal vigilance is no more the price of liberty than of health and life when the heavy cloud of a terrible epidemic is hanging over the world.

Our Democratic friends need not be nervous. The Republican party will once more save them from their own folly. They shall not be ruined by free trade. They shall continue to be prosperous in spite of themselves.

News From Wales.

LONDON, August 28.—Several Welsh tin-plate manufacturers closed their works on Saturday. Sixty works are now closed, and 10,000 hands are idle. Many sailed on Saturday to find employment in America.

This is interesting. Sixty Welsh tin-plate works closed and 10,000 operatives thrown out of employment by the McKinley tariff act, and still we are making so little tin-plate in this country that the Democratic free traders are forced to laugh about it.

The Welsh are not joining in those Democratic smiles. Neither are they believing the tin-plate liars. Welsh manufacturers are getting ready to embark in the business in the United States. Discharged operatives are coming to this country to find employment in our new industry at their old handicraft.

They leave behind them all the blessings of free trade and hie them to these protected shores, where only the grasshoppers and the seven-year locusts can find a living, because nothing else that is animate escape the life destroying "tariff tax" on the necessities of life.

"This way of the transgressor is hard."—Register.

We take the liberty of ascribing this touching sentiment to our neighbor, for being human it must at this time be taking this view of things earthly.

BREAKFAST BUDGET.

"Women have been voting for twenty years in Wyoming," says Senator Warren, of that state, "and there is not a better governed community from one end of the land to the other. For the first time they will vote this year on a choice for President, and I will vouch for their judgment and independence. I believe the day is coming when every state will see the injustice and disadvantage of denying political rights because of sex."

A mink entered the lot of Mr. Wel, ford Stanley, near Fredericksburg, Va. and seized a large rooster and started to leave with it, when the rooster suddenly rose and flew a distance of over one hundred yards with the mink hanging to his tail. Finally the mink let loose its hold, after flying about ten yards further, came to the ground, none the worse for his voyage save a slight bruise.

The natural historian of the Leavenworth Standard says that a water moccasin snake thirty inches long can swallow a catfish twelve inches long without experiencing any inconvenience on account of the fish's horns, which sometimes puncture the snake's body and project a half inch through each side.

Mr. C. Wyndham, the London playwright, has the laugh on his critics. When he produced his "Fringe of Society" it was universally condemned, yet it pleased the public immensely and the theater was crowded for weeks.

The "waxfitter" in Queen Victoria's household arranges the candles on the dinner table, for which he draws £60 a year, but he does not light them. That duty is performed by two lamp-lighters, drawing a salary of £100 each.

Mrs. Thibadeau, a Bangor (Me.) dispatch relates, got drowsy in church on Sunday, and yawned so vigorously that she dislocated her jaw, and her contortions at once broke up the service.

Joseph Ball, nearly ninety years old, was in Nyack, N. Y., one day last week, looking for relatives and friends. He left there sixty-five years ago and has not been there since.

PERSONAL POINTS.

The emperor of Germany has presented a magnificent sword to the crown prince, his son, the youngest lieutenant in the Prussian army. On the hilt is the following inscription: "Trust in God and defend thyself bravely. Therein lie thy honor and glory. He who fights heartily on the side of God will never be driven from the field. Thy power belongs to the Fatherland. To my dear son William, May 6, 1892. Wilhelm, R."

According to the tax list of Orange, N. J., the duchess of Manchester (who lived there as Consuelo Yannaga when she married the recently deceased Lord Mandeville) owes the town $450 for poll tax. It appears that the entry was made by some one who thought Consuelo was a masculine name.

The lady who has suddenly won considerable celebrity by a single book, under the name of Lance Falconer, is Miss Mary Hawker, Miss Helen Gladstone's most intimate personal friend. She had previously written for twenty years without recognition.

Lieut. Manlio Garibaldi, son of Gen. Giuseppe Garibaldi, the hero of Italian liberty, is on board the Italian ship Garigliano, which is bringing to this country the Christopher Columbus monument.

Archdeacon Farrar, of Westminster, is one of the many notable people who are to visit this country next year. He comes to visit a son in Philadelphia and the Columbian exposition in Chicago. Madame Sarah Bernhardt is devoted to dogs. Her favorite is a small Skye terrier, given her by George Hugo. Every day it is fed on the breast of chickens and the legs of quail.

Fatal Misunderstanding of Orders.

HORTON, KAN., August 29.—A terrible collision of two freight trains a few miles west of Horton occurred yesterday on the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific road, in which brakeman Thomas Douglas lost his life. The two firemen were fatally injured. A misunderstanding of orders is said to have caused the collision.

The Testimonials.

Published in behalf of Hood's Sarsaparilla are not extravagant, are not "written up," nor are they from its employees. They are facts, and prove that Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses absolute merit and is worthy the full confidence of the people.

Hood's PILLS are purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, effective, but do not cause pain or gripe. Be sure to get Hood's.

THE only reason for Mr. Cleveland's nomination, and the thing that forced his nomination in spite of all the efforts of politicians, was the fact that, in the minds of the Democratic masses, he represents the idea of free trade. The platform is an unmistakable declaration against all parleying with protection. It puts the Democratic party in the field as committed to the policy of sweeping away every shred of a protective duty.—Henry George, the Free Trader.

CAN chronic diarrhoea be cured? Those who think not should read the following from Mr. Joseph McGuffin of Spaulding, Union county, Iowa. He says: "I was troubled for years with chronic diarrhoea and used many kinds of medicine; but nothing with permanent effect for good, until I tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I would say to every one in need of medicine for the ailment mentioned and kindred disease try the Remedy, and like myself, you will never be without it in your home." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by druggists.
